RESPECTING "WAR LOANS"

THE Bonanza lays no claim to being an expert in finance, either personal, communal or international, but it is published at such a distance from disturbances both belligerent and financial that it has an opportunity to view the situation in composite form, instead of merely taking in the incidents as they tumble. Hence the opposition which this paper has expressed to the loan of $1,000,000,000 to the allied powers on no other security than the notes which they might easily and possibly will, in case of defeat, repudiate.

Another paper that takes a similar view, that big neighbor, the San Francisco Chronicle, one of the staid, conservative, reliable and observing publications of the west, expresses its opinions somewhat in this manner:

Considering the matter from the sentimental side, there is no historical instance of refusal by neutrals to make war loans if there was any money in them. We could not have won our independence when we did except by loans from France and Holland. We borrowed all we could in Europe during our civil war. Both French and German banks are today loaded up with evidences of loans made to the different countries during the Balkan war. It does not lie in the mouth of any European people to attack the propriety of war loans by neutrals. Americans are debarred from it by their record of borrowers for war purposes.

Coming to the practical side, a situation has been created in which we can sell non-essentials to none of the belligerents, unless we lend them the money. As we cannot deliver to the Germans and Austrians, the question of lending does not arise in that case. As we can deliver to the other side, the question of lending is confined to lending to the allies.

In any case, we shall sell war material, because, by hook or crook, the gold will be found, as it is being found, to pay for it. And we shall accept the gold, although we already have more than we can use to advantage.

Nevertheless, in spite of our obvious interest to the contrary, it does not seem probable that any large foreign loan can be floated in this country. Investment will probably be confined to ready-money "capitalists," and what they can absorb will not go very far. Most of the big loans are made by poor men, and no bank can underwrite or purchase bonds of any kind for which there is not an open and active cash market.

THE HALTING ATTITUDE OF BUSINESS

THE matter of where business stands in regard to the Wilson administration is clearly shown in the address delivered by Albert Greene Duncan, the president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, at the annual convention of this association just held. It is an association that is non-political and non-partisan. It includes in its membership both Democrats and Republicans, and men of the south as well as of the north. As the spokesman and representative of this body, which has had nearly a century of existence, Mr. Duncan said:

"The halting attitude of business is the natural sequence of our recent national policies, and is caused by the fear of the legislative and governmental campaign against business. The policy of the party in power has been called 'the freeing of business from its shackles,' but, in spite of this well-sounding phrase, the business man who has undergone the freeing process finds himself more hampered and harassed than at any previous time in our history. The war, in a financial sense, is a blessing in disguise. Because of it, the new tariff law is at the moment inoperative in effect, though present as a menace. The extent of the disaster that would have overtaken our industries had the operation of the new tariff continued in full vigor until the present day, no man can estimate."

TONOPAH'S GREAT OPPORTUNITY

FOUR laden wagons, drawn by a long string of horses and mules, was a familiar sight this morning as the train, a goodly portion of a city block in length, groaned and creaked up the street, bound for some outlying mining camp. Aboard were supplies for the winter, provisions, tools, powder and other accessories, while one wagon was piled high with lumber for the construction of more commodious quarters for the men.

When this team returns the wagons will doubtless be bearing ore or concentrates, as they have done many times in the past. Tonopah is a focal point for a vast region where mines are being developed and where a number are already in the profitably productive list. It should be the aim of all Tonopah business men to cater to this trade, so that the teams will load up at the local stores, warehouses and lumber yards, instead of taking their burden directly from the cars, thus eliminating home profit.

MORE LEASING, BIGGER MINES

USUALLY when a mining company lets leases it is a sign of approaching exhaustion of its ore bodies, but it is becoming evident that in the Midway and Montana they are only beginning to be accurately located. The leasing system put many millions of dollars into circulation in Goldfield, one claim alone having a record of $10,000,000 during the leasing days, to say nothing of what was being high graded.

Tonopah has a large acreage that is not being developed on company account. It would seem the part of good judgment, in view of what the leasers up on the hill are accomplishing both for the companies and themselves, to let a lot of additional ground loose. The miners who are working for themselves are much more successful in ferreting out ore lenses than are those who are simply on the payroll and making the demanded footage.

About the only opportunity some people have to get publicity is to become county commissioners.

Strange! Here the Tonopah public schools have been in operation for the better part of a month and not a single parent or "patron" has registered a kick.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT A GOOD ADVERTISER

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS SPENT TO GIVE PUBLICITY TO JOHN
BULL'S CAUSE

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Sept. 16.—How many million dollars the British government has spent in advertising during the first year of the war no expert accountant has yet had the facilities to estimate. It is a safe statement to make, however, that no nation ever spent one-tenth as much on printers' ink in the same period.

Kitchener's army has been raised chiefly by advertising. Full page, half page and smaller advertisements in the papers are almost daily occurrences. The billboards have been covered with the greatest variety of posters any advertiser ever had printed. A collection of these would reveal every play of ingenious appeal advertising experts are capable of inventing. The signs on trams, buses and private motor-cars increase rather than decrease as the war continues. There are appeals for recruits in prose and verse, in cartoon and suggestive picturing—all dressed as attractively as colored inks and trained advertising men can make them.

ING MATTER CONSIDERED

Mark H. Page of Tonopah wrote recently to the San Francisco exposition authorities with reference to the rock drilling contest that was presumed to be arranged for some date next month at the Panama-Pacific exposition and in return receives the following communication:

"I am in receipt of your letter dated the 23rd instant in reference to the rock drilling contests here at the exposition.

"I have taken the proposition up with the department that has this feature in charge, and while nothing has developed along these lines at the present time, I am advised that such a contest is contemplated, that publicity throughout the mining counties will be given in due course and all details regarding entries, prizes and all necessary information will be advertised.

"Further than this, just as soon as anything final is decided I will personally see that details are sent to you."

Ford Runabout	$390.00
Ford Touring Car	440.00
Ford Town Car	640.00

There can be no assurance given against an advance in these prices at any time. We guarantee, however, that there will be no reduction in these prices prior to August 1, 1916.

Profit-Sharing with Retail Buyers

On August 1, 1914, we made the announcement that if we could make and sell at retail 300,000 Ford cars between Aug. 1, 1914, and Aug. 1, 1915, we would share profits with retail purchasers to the extent of from $10 to $50 on each car.

We have sold over 250,000 Ford cars in the time specified, and profit-sharing checks of $50 each will be distributed as rapidly as possible after August 15, 1915. Retail purchasers who have not yet mailed us their profit-sharing coupons, properly endorsed, should do so without delay.

Our plan to profit-share with retail purchasers of Ford cars during 1914-15 has been most successful. We thoroughly believe in it, but, realizing the uncertainty of conditions generally makes it advisable to defer any announcement of future profit-sharing until a later date.

We are, however, confident of our inability to reduce costs for several months, and therefore can offer no profit-sharing for cars delivered during August, September and October, 1915.
